Karzai Agrees to New Vote

Afghan president backs runoff after fraud-filled election

KABUL | A grim President Hamid Karzai bowed to intense U.S. pressure and agreed Tuesday to a runoff election Nov. 7, acknowledging he fell short of a majority after U.N.-backed auditors stripped him of nearly a third of his votes.

With the fraud investigation completed, election officials must now scramble to organize a new ballot as the fierce Afghan winter approaches and the country faces a growing threat from Taliban insurgents.

President Obama said he called Karzai to welcome his willingness to run in a new election against his main rival, Abdullah Abdullah. "President Karzai's constructive actions established an important precedent for Afghanistan's new democracy," Obama said.

U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon also complimented Karzai's decision but stressed that a new election will be a "huge challenge."

Karzai spoke at a news conference after meeting at least four times with Sen. John Kerry, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The Afghan leader did not express any regret over the widespread fraud, saying only that "this is not the right time to discuss investigations; this is the time to move forward toward stability and national unity." (AP)

Shocker: Amelia Earhart a Rag Doll

A Cleveland museum has learned that what it thought was a lock of hair from Amelia Earhart is just thread. A group looking for DNA evidence of the aviator on a Pacific island asked the International Women's Air and Space Museum for a sample of the "hair" for comparison. Museum executive director Toni Mullee says an analysis determined the specimen was thread that looked like hair. (AP)

Cat All Up in SUV's Grille

A cat who rode two miles through New York City while stuck in the engine compartment of an SUV has survived. Wilfred Rodriguez heard rattling while he was driving Monday. After he parked, he spotted a bushy tail and a paw sticking out of the SUV's front end. His initial reaction: "Oh, my God! I killed a cat." He was relieved when the paw moved. The New York Police Department's Emergency Service Unit freed the grease-covered kitty by removing the SUV's battery and other vehicle parts. Richard Gentles of New York City Animal Care & Control says the stray appears to be in good physical shape. (AP)

Higher-Ed Costs Soar In the U.S.

Report: Tuition rates increased in autumn despite bad economy

Average tuition at four-year public colleges in the U.S. climbed 6.5 percent, or $429, to $7,020 this fall as schools apologetically passed along their own financial problems, according to an report from the College Board, released on Tuesday. At private colleges, tuition rose 4.4 percent, or $1,096, to $26,273.

The percentage increase in tuition at four-year public colleges this fall, the College Board reports.

"Every sector of the American economy is under stress, and higher education is no exception," said Terry Hartle, senior vice president of the American Council on Education.

As usual, the rise in tuition outstripped the overall inflation rate. In fact, during the period covered by the report, consumer prices declined 2.1 percent. So, the latest tuition increase at public colleges was closer to 9 percent in real terms. JUSTIN POPE (AP)

Justices to Hear Plea From Gitmo

High court to decide fate of detainees who aren't a threat to U.S.

WASHINGTON | The Supreme Court agreed Tuesday to decide whether Guantanamo detainees who are considered no threat can be ordered released in the United States — over the objections of the Obama administration and Congress — if the prisoners have nowhere else to go.

The case could further complicate the administration's plans to close the Guantanamo prison.

The court's fourth look at the terror-suspects detention system, created by the Bush administration after the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, will focus on 13 Chinese Muslims, most of whom were cleared by the Pentagon for release in 2003. Six years later — and eight years after their capture in Pakistan and Afghanistan in 2001 — they remain in custody at the U.S. naval base in Cuba. The first three high court decisions were rebukes to the government for denying detainees their day in court.

Chinese Uighur detainees show a note to visiting members of the media on June 1 at U.S. Naval Base Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

The justices said they will hear a challenge from the Chinese Muslims, or Uighurs, who are asking the court to put some teeth into its June 2008 ruling that said federal judges could ultimately order some detainees to be released.

The justices will hear the argument early in 2010, although it is possible that if the administration succeeds in relocating the Uighurs by then, the case could be dismissed.

President Obama's administration, like his predecessor's, has been trying to find somewhere to resettle the Uighurs, with limited success. MARK SHERMAN (AP)

Ortner says after her son, Keegan, trained with the team for weeks and paid $70 for a physical and cleats, she was told his grades weren't good enough to play. Ortner says the school won't refund the $70. (AP)

Imams Settle With Airline

Muslims filed lawsuit after being removed from a flight in 2006

MINNEAPOLIS | Six imams taken off of a 2006 US Airways flight after passengers reported what they considered suspicious behavior have settled their discrimination lawsuit, saying they considered it an acknowledgment that their removal was a mistake.

Neither the imams nor attorneys in the case would discuss terms of the tentative settlement, which was announced Tuesday and requires approval from a federal judge.

Marwan Sadeddin of Phoenix said the settlement does not include an apology, but he considers it an acknowledgment that a mistake was made. He did not point the finger at either US Airways or local authorities.

"It's fine for all parties. It's been solved. ... There is no need for a trial," Sadeddin said.

"We reached our goal," said Omar Shahin of Phoenix, another of the imams and the chairman of the North American Imams Federation.

Authorities removed the Muslim prayer leaders from the Phoenix-bound flight in November 2006 while they were returning home from a conference of the North American Imams Federation in Minneapolis. Some passengers became alarmed after the clerics said their evening prayers in Arabic before boarding the plane, and they told authorities some of the men made critical comments about the Iraq war while aboard.

The imams were handcuffed and questioned for several hours before they were released. They ultimately returned home via another airline.

"This case sends a strong message to everybody," Shahin said. "And at the same time we still encourage everyone to report any suspicious activity. But we should handle it in a very professional way. We should not humiliate anybody; we should not underestimate anybody; we should not do wrong to anybody." STEVE KARNOWSKI (AP)

Questions Fly in Balloon Incident

Authorities working to unravel motivation behind alleged hoax

FORT COLLINS, COLO. | An investigation into possible criminal charges for a Colorado couple who told authorities their son floated off in a balloon shaped like a flying saucer has spread to those who worked with them.

Robert Thomas told sheriff's investigators about what he observed between amateur storm chasers Richard and Mayumi Heene when he helped record the husband's ideas earlier this year, said Thomas' attorney, Linda Lee. Thomas earlier sold his story to the Web site Gawker.com.

Lee said Richard Heene was "obsessed" with trying to land a TV show and become famous.

Richard Heene is pictured with his son Ryo Monday in Fort Collins, Colo. Heene is accused of perpetrating last week's balloon boy hoax to promote a reality show.

Investigators have been poring over evidence as they consider charges against the Heenes.

"Heene believes the world is going to end in 2012," she said. "Because of that, he wanted to make money quickly, become rich enough to build a bunker or something underground, where he can be safe from the sun exploding."

Thomas told the "Today" show on NBC on Tuesday that he had nothing to do with the hoax.

Larimer County investigators have been poring over e-mails, phone records and financial documents from the Heene home as they ponder charges against the Heenes.

The sheriff's office said its findings will be forwarded to prosecutors next week to decide whether the Heenes should be charged with falsely reporting that their 6-year-old son, Falcon, had drifted away in a large home-built helium balloon to drum up publicity for a reality TV show.

Sheriff Jim Alderden said documents show that a media outlet had agreed to pay the Heenes. However, it was unclear whether the outlet was a conspirator. Alderden didn't name the organization.

The Heenes apparently wanted to star in a reality show focusing on a range of bizarre experiments, such as trying to attract UFOs with a weather balloon. Thomas worked with Richard Heene on the idea for the show from March until May.

Richard Heene's attorney, David Lane, declined to say directly whether he believes the incident was a hoax but said the Heenes are innocent until proven guilty.

Alonzo Monk has agreed to cooperate in the case against Rod Blagojevich.

Blagojevich Aide Enters Guilty Plea

Former gov.'s one-time staffer claims that he witnessed corruption

CHICAGO | A former chief of staff and longtime friend of ousted Illinois governor Rod Blagojevich pleaded guilty to wire fraud Tuesday and promised to cooperate with federal prosecutors in their corruption case against Blagojevich.

Alonzo "Lon" Monk, 51, said that as Blagojevich's top aide, he witnessed efforts to shake down road builders, a hospital executive and a racetrack owner for hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign contributions for the governor.

Monk said that even before Blagojevich was elected, there was talk of using the powers of the governor's office to raise a cash horde that would eventually be divided among an inner circle of key advisers.

Monk's decision to cooperate and take the witness stand if called upon at Blagojevich's trial could be a devastating blow to the former governor because the one-time chief of staff might provide jurors with a firsthand account of the corruption that prosecutors say was swirling around the state administration. Vatican Reaches Out to Anglicans

Officials plan to help traditionalists join the Catholic Church

VATICAN CITY | The Vatican announced Tuesday it was making it easier for Anglicans to convert to Roman Catholicism — a surprise move designed to entice traditionalists opposed to women priests, openly gay clergy and the blessing of same-sex unions.

The decision, reached in secret by a small cadre of Vatican officials, was sure to add to the problems of the 77-million-strong Anglican Communion as it seeks to deal with deep doctrinal divisions that threaten a permanent schism among its faithful.

The change means conservative Anglicans from around the world will be able to join the Catholic Church while retaining aspects of their Anglican liturgy and identity, including married priests.

Roman Catholic Archbishop Vincent Nichols, right, speaks in London Tuesday after the Vatican said it would make it easier for Anglicans to convert to Catholicism.

“The unity of the church does not require a uniformity that ignores cultural diversity, as the history of Christianity shows,” said Cardinal William Levada, head of the Vatican’s Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith in announcing the decision.

The spiritual leader of the global Anglican church, Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams, was not consulted about the change and was informed only hours before the announcement. He nevertheless tried to downplay the significance and said it wasn’t a Vatican commentary on Anglican problems.

“It has no negative impact on the relations of the communion as a whole to the Roman Catholic Church as a whole,” he said in London.

Until now, disaffected Anglicans had joined the Catholic Church primarily on a case-by-case basis.

The decision could undermine decades of talks between the Vatican and Anglican leaders about how they could possibly reunite. Although Levada insisted such discussions remain a priority, the Vatican move could be taken as a signal that the ultimate goal of ecumenical talks is to convert Anglicans to Catholicism. Toll From Brazil Clashes Hits 25

BRASILIA, BRAZIL | The death toll from bloody clashes in Rio de Janeiro is up to 25 after authorities found more bodies.

The newly discovered victims include a young man found dead in a supermarket cart at the entrance to a slum that saw intense gang combat over the weekend. He was shot repeatedly and showed signs of having been tortured.

Most of the victims were suspected members of drug trafficking gangs. But a police spokeswoman confirmed Tuesday that three were partygoers who had originally been labeled as presumed criminals. She spoke on condition of anonymity.

A police helicopter was also downed by gunfire as gangs fought for territory, just two weeks after Rio won the 2016 Olympics. Three officers aboard died. (AP)

Court Rejects Polanski's Appeal

GENEVA | Roman Polanski's three decades as a fugitive are coming back to haunt him.

Noting his previous escape from U.S. authorities, Switzerland's top criminal court on Tuesday rejected Polanski's appeal to be released from prison because of the “high” risk that the 76-year-old director would try to flee again.

Polanski's offers of bail, house arrest and electronic monitoring failed to sway the tribunal. Even a Swiss chalet in the luxury resort of Gstaad was brushed aside as insufficient collateral to guard against Polanski's fleeing the country, as the United States seeks to have him extradited for having sex with a 13-year-old girl in 1977.

“The appellant has already once in 1978 eluded American criminal proceedings by traveling to Europe,” the Federal Criminal Court said in its 17-page verdict, adding that Polanski's transfer to the U.S. could also cause family trauma and cost investors in his latest film millions of dollars in losses.

“As a result, the motivation to flee is high,” the court said.

Pakistani security officials collect evidence at the site of a suicide bombing at a university in Islamabad, Pakistan, on Tuesday.

Six Die in Pakistan Attack

Bombers hit Islamic university popular with foreign students

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN | Suicide bombers attacked an Islamic university popular with foreigners in Pakistan's capital Tuesday, killing four students in apparent retaliation for an escalating army offensive on a Taliban and al-Qaeda stronghold near the Afghan border.

An Associated Press reporter close to the battle zone in South Waziristan met a group of Taliban fighters who challenged army claims of progress in the four-day assault, saying they had pushed soldiers back from the strategic town of Kotkai.

Intelligence officials also said the army had been repelled from the town after being close to taking it. They asked that their names not be used for operational reasons.

The suicide bombers hit a faculty building and a women's cafeteria at the International Islamic University, where nearly half the students are women and hundreds are foreigners.

The blasts killed two male and two female students and wounded at least 18 others. The two attackers were also killed, officials said.

No group claimed responsibility for the attack on what some people thought was a surprising target for Islamist extremists, but the president of the university and authorities said they believed it was the work of militants.

Authorities have been warning that militants would try to bring the war to Pakistan's cities since the army began its offensive. Many schools were closed after authorities on Monday said the schools could be targeted. CHRIS BRUMMITT (AP)

Mandela Foundation Disputes Book

JOHANNESBURG | A new self-serving book by a central African president lists Nelson Mandela as the writer of the glowing foreword, but South Africa's iconic leader says he never wrote those words or even read the tome, and his foundation vowed to take action.

"We condemn this brazen abuse of Mr. Mandela's name," Verne Harris, acting chief executive of the Johannesburg-based Nelson Mandela Foundation, said in a statement Tuesday.

The as-told-to political biography by Republic of Congo President Denis Sassou-Nguesso is titled "Straight Speaking for Africa," and the front cover claims in large type that Mandela penned the foreword.

That may have raised an eyebrow among readers who know that Sassou-Nguesso came to power in a coup three decades ago and has been in power intermittently ever since.

The Mandela Foundation rarely uses language as sharp as that used to condemn Sassou-Nguesso's book on Tuesday.

"We will be taking appropriate action," Harris said, adding that Mandela decided last year to stop writing forewords to books. (AP)

Scholar Gets Long Sentence in Iran

Iranian American is sent to prison for 12 years for role in unrest

TEHRAN, IRAN | Iran ignored appeals by Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton and even rock star Sting and sentenced an Iranian-American academic to 12 years in prison Tuesday for his alleged role in anti-government protests after the country's disputed presidential election.

The sentence for Kian Tajbakhsh was the longest prison term yet in a mass trial of more than 100 opposition figures, activists and journalists in the post-election turmoil.

At the same time, Iran allowed another defendant to leave the country — Canadian-Iranian Maziar Bahari, a Newsweek journalist arrested in the same crackdown who had been freed on bail over the weekend. Bahari joined his British wife, who is in the last days of her pregnancy, in London, Newsweek said on its Web site Tuesday.

Tajbakhsh, a social scientist and urban planner, was arrested by security forces at his Tehran home on July 9 — he was the only American detained in the crackdown that crushed giant street protests by hundreds of thousands of people after the June 12 election. The opposition claims the vote was rigged in favor of President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad.

Iranian American Kian Tajbakhsh, seen in August, will serve 12 years in prison.

The security sweep went far beyond protesters on the streets, snatching up rights activists and journalists, and pro-reform politicians. The government accused them of organizing the protests on behalf of Iran's foreign enemies to overthrow the Islamic leadership.

Far Right's TV Coverage Irks Brits

Government decries plans for BBC show to include fringe party

LONDON | To the outrage of many Britons, a white-supremacist fringe party riding a wave of electoral success has been invited to participate in a BBC prime-time TV show on politics.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown's Labour Party government says it is appalled that the far-right British National Party will get such high-profile exposure to millions of viewers. The BBC, however, says as a publicly funded broadcaster it must cover all political parties that have a national presence.

"It's not for the BBC to make decisions about what parties it does and doesn't like," a BBC spokesman said Tuesday on condition of anonymity in line with company policy. "That, quite rightly, is a decision for the electorate."

The BNP, which opposes immigration and says it fights for "indigenous" Britons, wants to become a force in British politics. Although it isn't likely to gain a seat in the national Parliament because of Britain's first-past-the-post electoral system, the BNP serves on several city councils and made an electoral breakthrough in June, when it took about 6 percent of the British vote in European elections, winning two EU parliament seats.

On Thursday, BNP leader Nick Griffin is scheduled to appear on the BBC's flagship political debate show "Question Time" — a highly valued imprimatur of political respectability. A senior Cabinet minister, Justice Secretary Jack Straw, is supposed to be on the same program, where panelists are questioned about current affairs by a studio audience.

The far-right party is so pleased with the invite that it is counting down the seconds until the broadcast on its Web site.

The government and anti-racist groups say the invitation to Griffin legitimizes fascist views, and protesters have vowed to picket Thursday's taping at the BBC's West London studios. JILL LAWLESS (AP)

Fairfax Cancels
H1N1 Vaccine
Distributions

Fairfax County has canceled two mass swine flu vaccine distributions after the Washington region's most populous locality was told it would receive only a fraction of the vaccine doses it had expected. Officials had originally planned on administering 50,000 H1N1 flu vaccine shots to schoolchildren next weekend at 10 public middle schools. Instead, a smaller, targeted distribution for infants and pregnant women has been scheduled for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday at the Fairfax County Government Center.

Health officials had been expecting about 120,000 vaccine shots by the end of the month but now anticipate only about 10,000 vaccine doses will be delivered. DEREK KRAVITZ (THE WASHINGTON POST)

D.C. Animal Rights Bill Proposed

Legislation would impose new rules for tackling large pests

D.C. residents may want think twice before they use a broom to try to swat that bat in their garage or set out rat traps to ensnare the opossum living under their porch. After being at the complete mercy of man since before colonial days, wild animals that roam city neighborhoods may soon have their own bill of rights. Council member Mary M. Cheh, D-Ward 3, introduced a bill Tuesday that would impose new standards to make sure furry creatures that live in or travel through city neighborhoods are treated humanely. The legislation, which Cheh crafted with the help of the Humane Society of the United States, states residents should use "lethal control" of raccoons, rabbits, bats and other wild animals "only when public safety is immediately threatened" or non-lethal methods have proven unsuccessful. Cheh's bill exempts "commensal rodents," meaning homeowners and exterminators will still be able to use traps and poison to kill rats and mice. But trappers will no longer be allowed to use glue and "body gripping" traps to catch larger animals. "It's a form of horrible torture with no release or respite for the animals," Cheh said. The proposal does not apply to Rock Creek Park, which is governed by federal regulations. So, the city still won't be able to intervene in the ongoing debate about whether the National Park Service should allow the use of lethal force to curb the deer population. Zorn Going Back to Campbell

Redskins coach says benched QB will start Monday vs. the Eagles

REDSKINS | Washington Redskins coach Jim Zorn said Tuesday that he would almost certainly return to Jason Campbell as the starting quarterback for Monday night's game against the Philadelphia Eagles, the first game in which Zorn will relinquish his play-calling duties to offensive consultant Sherman Lewis.

Zorn, speaking during his weekly appearance on ESPN-980, reiterated that he pulled Campbell at halftime of Sunday's loss to the Kansas City Chiefs — replacing him with 15-year veteran Todd Collins for the first time in Zorn's 22-game tenure as Washington's coach — in order to create a spark.

But after viewing the game film multiple times — and considering Collins' 6-for-14 performance wasn't enough to win the game or score a touchdown — Zorn said he remains confident in Campbell.

"I think what I'm gonna do is go right back to Jason Campbell," Zorn said. "I needed to take him out, and I think we had some things there that he knew he missed without being under duress. ... I made the decision, but I didn't give up on the young man. I didn't give up on the QB. So, that's where I think I'm gonna head as all is said and done here."

Campbell completed nine of 16 passes in the first half against previously winless Kansas City, and the Redskins failed to score in those two periods against one of the NFL's worst defenses.

Both Zorn and Campbell

Jason Campbell, far left, was benched Sunday by Jim Zorn, far right. But the coach insists he never gave up on the quarterback.

THE STARTER VS. THE BACKUP

Loyalty probably played a role in coach Jim Zorn's decision to stick with Jason Campbell over Todd Collins, but there were other facts at work.

JASON CAMPBELL

↑ FOR: The incumbent has the stronger arm and is more mobile, a key with a weakened offensive line.

↓ AGAINST: Though he has youth on his side, there hasn't been much progress. He's still inaccurate.

TODD COLLINS

↑ FOR: The career backup has all the poise and decision-making skills you'd ever want in the position.

↓ AGAINST: His arm strength. Plus, why play a veteran who'll be gone next year in a lost season?

acknowledged that the quarterback missed several open receivers, including Santana Moss on a deep seam route that might have gone for a touchdown.

Still, through six games, Campbell's passer rating is 84.3, which ranks 19th in the league and exactly matches his rating from last year, when he set a career high.

He is completing 65.6 percent of his passes — also a career high — and has thrown six touchdowns and six interceptions while playing behind an aging and oft-injured offensive line.

Collins, 37, started three games when Campbell was injured at the end of the 2007 season — all victories, all part of a Washington run to the playoffs in the wake of Sean Taylor's death. But those are Collins' only three starts since 1997 and were under the direction of offensive coordinator Al Saunders, who worked with Collins previously in Kansas City.

Though Collins entered the league a decade before Campbell did, Campbell actually has more career completions (782) than Collins has attempts (665). BARRY SVRLUGA (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Friedgen Softens Stance on QB

UMd. coach says he is not ‘disenchanted’ with senior Turner

TERPS FOOTBALL | Two days after saying he may soon play inexperienced quarterbacks to groom them for next season, Maryland coach Ralph Friedgen softened his stance on the quarterback situation Tuesday, promising that senior starter Chris Turner will play a large role in Saturday’s game at Duke. During his weekly Tuesday news conference, Friedgen attempted to clarify comments he made Sunday, when he talked about the need to start “making plans for the future” if losses continue to mount for a 2-5 team that has only one victory over a division I-A team. Both Turner, a team captain who is in his third season as the starter, and backup Jamarr Robinson, a sophomore who has never

And Friedgen said he planned to talk with Turner about comments that he felt Turner may have misconstrued. “We are not disenchanted with Chris,” Friedgen said. “If we don’t start doing better, I think it is a thing where you have to look at next year. But right now, I’m focusing on beating Duke.” ERIC PRISBELL (THE WASHINGTON POST)

The Phillies celebrate their comeback win on Monday night against the Dodgers in game 4 of the NLCS. Philadelphia can close out the series with a win Wednesday.

"We believe in ourselves. We believe in our ability. We know that there's 27 outs," Rollins said after Philadelphia's fourth comeback win in the postseason. "As long as you continue to believe in good things, I believe, and I think we believe, that good things will happen."

The Phillies led the NL with 43 comeback wins during the regular season.

"We always talk about it ... 27 outs to close out the game and you stay there until it's over like Yogi [Berra] said," Phillies manager Charlie Manuel said.

Unexpected Cavs Atop ACC Division

UVa. recovers from 0-3 start for critical battle versus Ga. Tech

CAVS FOOTBALL | Virginia suddenly finds itself the only team in the Atlantic Coast Conference without a loss in league play. The Cavaliers have won three games in a row, including two in the ACC.

Virginia — despite an 0-3 start — will have to be viewed as contenders in the Coastal Division with a win against No. 11 Georgia Tech this week.

Avoiding that kind of looking ahead could be critical to pulling off the upset, especially with a Yellow Jackets team that is playing as well as anyone in the league coming to town.

“Teams here and the players that have made up the teams, I think, are pretty strong believers that this is about one week at a time,” Cavaliers coach Al Groh said Monday.

Over the past three weeks, the Cavaliers (3-3, 2-0) have gone from a reeling team with a coach in jeopardy to one that has real reasons to feel positive about the possibilities. Georgia Tech (5-1, 4-1) now looks like the favorite in the division after dominating then-No. 4 Virginia Tech 28-23 last Saturday night, sending the Hokies tumbling to No. 15.

But Georgia Tech's travels through Charlottesville have rarely gone well. The Yellow Jackets haven't won at Scott Stadium since 1990, when they upset then No. 1-ranked Virginia 41-38 on a late field goal. HANK KURZ JR. (AP)

HEISMAN HOPEFULS | COLLEGE GRIDIRON GREATS

Florida QB Tim Tebow, maybe somewhat unfairly, stays on top because he keeps leading his team to wins. 2. Notre Dame QB Jimmy Clausen wasn't super-accurate against USC last week, but he still went for 260 yards and two TDs in the loss. 3. Mark Ingram is running all over the SEC, and the Alabama sophomore just came off an eye-popping 246-yard game against South Carolina. 4. Case Keenum has thrown for a ridiculous 2,501 yards and 19 TDs in six games for Houston.

Killed for Faith

Around the world people are killed because they serve Jesus. Will you help the families they leave behind?

On May 11, 2004, a massive riot broke out against Christians in northern Nigeria. At the end of the day, Monica Musa was a widow. The mob had cut her husband up into pieces and left his body lying in the street. Through our Nigerian partners, we helped Monica start a small business selling goods to support her family. Her children are safe and receive a free education at the Stephen Centre, a VOM-sponsored school in another city. She continues to serve the Lord. You can help widows like Monica by partnering with The Voice of the Martyrs.

for life without limits™

Times are tough.
So are we.

At AIDS Research Alliance of America, we aren't letting today's financial climate stand in the way of tomorrow's groundbreaking discoveries.

With the support of thousands of Combined Federal Campaign donors, we have doubled our laboratory space and are speeding up research into new HIV treatments, prevention methods and, our dream - a cure.

Please continue to support our vital work.

The end of AIDS begins with research.
The end of AIDS begins here.

Blood Cancers
do not discriminate.

They can
to anyone.

- Leukemia is the leading cause of death by disease in children and young adults up to age 20.
- Non-Hodgkin's lymphoma is the 5th most common cancer in the US.
- 5-year survival rates for leukemia and lymphoma are increasing – thanks to research.

Cures for leukemia, lymphoma and MDS
are possible – through research – and your support.

Ensuring the Future of Arthritis Care and Treatment

Since 1985, the ACR Research and Education Foundation has worked to promote and advance the treatment of arthritis and is currently considered to be the second largest funding source of rheumatology research and training programs in the U.S., second only to the NIH. Over the next two years, the REF will invest more than $20 million in rheumatology education, training and research.

Giving to the REF is not only a way to continue improving patient care for the more than 19 million adults with arthritis and rheumatic disease today, it's the way to advance the course of research that will lead to tomorrow's cures.

Learn more about the REF at www.rheumatology.org/REF

The ACR Research and Education Foundation is a proud member of the Combined Federal Campaign's Medical Research Charities Federation.

On the Stage Again

Comedian David Cross hits the road to promote his book, 'I Drink for a Reason'

Q&A | There's something undeniably cool about David Cross. Maybe it's the gray beard he's grown to go with the bald head and thick-rimmed glasses.

Maybe it's that he's kind of a jerk. Whatever it is, you get the sense he knows it — it's all part of his appeal — which might explain why Cross decided to write his first book, "I Drink for a Reason" (Grand Central Publishing), released in August. He's knowledgeable about politics, controversial about religion and spot-on when it comes to making fun of people. Cross doesn't mince words — it's part of his appeal.

Express chatted with the 45-year-old comedian about his return to touring and President Obama.

This is your first tour in about five years. Are you already sick of it?

I wouldn't say I'm sick of it, but I'm ready to go home. You don't eat well, I miss my girlfriend [actress LESSER OF TWO EVILS: David Cross hasn't been on tour in years but thought doing one would be a better way to promote his book than appearing on TV talk shows.

Amber Tamblyn], I miss my dog. [Still,] it's been more fun than I ever imagined, it's been really, really great.

What made you decide after all these years, to go back out and do a tour?

Because I have a book coming out, and when I met with the people at the publishing company, their idea to promote the book was — I'm not making this up or exaggerating — literally a book signing in New York, and then to go on "The View" and "Good Morning America." That's absolutely absurd. So, I took it upon myself to have a tour.

What's your stance on President Obama? Were you an Obama supporter? If so, are you still?

Not initially, during primaries, but once it came down to Obama and Hilary [Clinton], I was an Obama supporter. I think the patience and stomach to do what he does and to think the way he does and still communicate the way he does after such a vicious hypocritical double standard that everyone in Washington has, on the left and right — for him to kind of remain above the fray is pretty amazing. It's something I really admire — I couldn't do it.

The Name Behind That Tune

'The Addams Family' theme song composer Vic Mizzy dies at 93

OBIT | Vic Mizzy, a songwriter who composed the catchy themes for the 1960s sitcoms "The Addams Family" and "Green Acres," has died. He was 93.

Mizzy died Saturday at his home in Bel Air, Calif., his manager Jonathan Wolfson said. He said he didn't know the cause of death.

He wrote songs that were recorded by Dean Martin, Doris Day, Perry Como and Billie Holiday in the '40s and '50s.

But his most famous work was the theme to "The Addams Family," a tune accented by finger snaps and opening with the cleverly quirky lyrics: "They're creepy and they're kooky, mysterious and spooky, they're altogether ooky: the Addams family." Mizzy sang the song himself. He also directed the title sequence.

He is survived by a brother, daughter and two grandchildren.

CASTING Get Defensive Tommy Lee Jones is in negotiations to direct and star in "The Lincoln Lawyer," the Matthew McConaughey vehicle based on the 2005 best-seller by Michael Connelly. "Lawyer" centers on Mickey Haller (McConaughey), a wheeler-dealer Los Angeles lawyer who operates out of the back of his Lincoln. Haller is content with a career defending garden-variety criminals until he lands the case of a lifetime: defending a Beverly Hills playboy accused of murder. (THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER)

A Punky Sister Act Matures

Tegan and Sara dig deep into failed love on their forthcoming album, 'Sainthood'

BAND | It's not uncommon for Tegan and Sara Quin, the Canadian twins known for warm but prickly love-pop, to field marriage proposals from their fans. In a recent interview, the sisters played off of each other's tales about their most ardent admirers.

"At one show," Tegan Quin said, "a girl shrieked out, 'I want to marry you, Tegan!' I think she was maybe 16."

The kind of devotion that Tegan and Sara, 28, inspire in their fans — a group largely made up of punk lasses with choppy haircuts — is the result of one of the most direct band-to-audience connections in all of indie pop. With confessional but analytical lyrics, Tegan and Sara have managed to capture the vicissitudes of relationships by examining their own romantic behaviors on albums including their 2004 breakthrough, "So Jealous," and its strong 2007 follow-up, "The Con." For "Sainthood," due out Oct. 27, which takes its title from the Leonard Cohen song "Come So Far for Beauty," the twins plumbed the obsessive optimism that comes with new love by examining failed affairs, specifically their parents' divorce and Sara Quin's long-term relationship.

"Getting out of a long relationship shook me to my core," she said. "You can be so committed to something and yet it still doesn't work. I think if we knew how things were going to end, most people wouldn't get involved, but love is throwing caution to the wind. All of the songs touch on that."

“Our audience is looking younger to me. I look out at them, and they remind me of myself.”

Produced by Death Cab for Cutie's Chris Walla (who also did double duty on bass) and Howard Redekopp, "Sainthood" revels in obsessive intensity, but there's also a deeper sense of maturity creeping into the music.

"Our music keeps growing," Tegan Quin said. "And our audience is looking younger to me. I look out at them, and they remind me of myself." MARGARET WAPPLER (LOS ANGELES TIMES)

Being Who They Really Are

Hall & Oates rebrand themselves with a surprisingly diverse and complex box set

Q&A | Rather than simply collect an artist's well-known hits along with a smattering of unreleased tracks, the best box sets have something to prove. They portray an artist in a new and more complex light.

That's precisely what makes "Do What You Want, Be Who You Are: The Music of Daryl Hall and John Oates" such a fascinating set: It rescues the duo from the nostalgia-act ghetto and presents them as versatile songwriters, inventive producers and innovative synthesizers of styles ranging from Philly soul to '60s folk to jazz to New Wave.

On the eve of their Up Close & Personal tour, Express managed to wrangle a few minutes with John Oates and got him to talk about reassessing the duo's long career and their recent resurgence.

How did the box set come together for you?

It's something that we've had on the back burner for quite a while. We've always wanted to do it, but all the parts and personnel were not in place. We wanted something that would really represent us properly, represent the breadth and scope of our songwriting over a 30-year period.

There's such an impressive range of sounds and styles on here.

For the casual fan, they know us from our hits, but we're so much more than that. The hits were a by-product of hard work and the good albums that we made. That's really what this box set will show.

What was it like to go through and hear some of these songs for the first time in years?

It's like you're looking at your life musically, because our music and our life are one in the same. They're intertwined. The relationships and emotions, the experiences of our life are expressed in our music, so it's daunting and surprising, and sad and happy, and all those gamut of emotions that you have when you revisit the important moments of your life. Comic Commentary

As newspapers frantically search for ways to stay solvent, logic directs them to fundraise using the part of the paper people actually read: the cartoons. Cartoons and Cocktails gathers D.C. political cartoonists and journalists, who will auction off drawings to raise money for a local youth journalism organization and the Cartoonist Rights Network. You can also have your own caricature drawn. J.L.

2 Steelpan Shakespeare

Theaters are constantly trying to think of ways to make Shakespeare new. Sometimes it works; sometimes it's Secret Agent "Richard II." We're excited for the Folger's Caribbean-themed "Much Ado About Nothing"—the setting seems like a perfect fit for the cheerful, boisterous comedy. We hope it keeps the calypso dance interludes to a minimum, though. Shakespeare's long enough as it is. f.z.

Sine the Gaslight Anthem released 2008's "The '59 Sound," an instant classic brimming with post-punk rock anthems, the group has grown from being a Black Cat backstage band to an international sensation that had a hero, Bruce Springsteen, join it onstage in England. Showtime reveals the inner workings of a Los Angeles gun shop

BANG! "Lock 'n Load" (8 p.m., Showtime) offers a hidden-camera take on working in a Los Angeles gun shop. Creator and producer Josh T. Ryan "performs" as a salesman to a diverse clientele in search of concealable handguns, shotguns and semi-automatic weapons.

Both Ryan and his show take a hands-off approach to this subject. His customers include a few dolts who make crude jokes about their wives; a mother, father and infant who pose with some impressive firepower; a petite woman, looking for a small gun, who happens to own a construction company in a "crappy" (her word) part of town; two guys who claim to work security in a neighborhood besieged by gang warfare; and a woman who shoots clay traps for sport. The store also includes a firing range in the basement, so many of the conversations and sales occur over a percussive din.

Ryan's most surprising customer is a local preacher who likes to head to firing range after a day of ministering to his flock.

By concentrating on sales and allowing the customers to speak for themselves, "Lock" does a good job of revealing the culture of gun ownership without overt judgment or observation. KEVIN MCDONOUGH

Four-State Route a Scenic Byway

MORGANTOWN, W.VA. | The Journey Through Hallowed Ground, a historic driving route that meanders 180 miles through four states, has been named a National Scenic Byway.

The road runs from Gettysburg, Pa., site of the famous Civil War battle, through Maryland and Jefferson County, W.Va., to Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's home in Virginia.

The route, which generally follows the Old Carolina Road, was created by the Journey Through Hallowed Ground Partnership, a nonprofit group dedicated to promoting American history.

On its Web site, the partnership claims its region contains more sites of historical value than any other in the nation, encompassing "11,000 years of dense history from ancient burial grounds and Native American history to 400 years of European, American and African American heritage."

Destinations relate not only to the Civil War but also to colonial and presidential history. (AP)

Of Hope and History

Bill Clinton's first Arkansas home will be a National Park site

HISTORY | The Bill Clinton First Home Museum will soon be a part of the National Park system, a designation that will give the modest structure on a busy street more visibility as a tourist destination.

The two-story, wood-frame house on South Hervey Street in Hope, Ark., was where Clinton lived after his birth in 1946 at Julia Chester Hospital until age 4.

The home was occupied until it was acquired by the Clinton Birthplace Foundation during Clinton's presidency.

The dwelling, which opened as a museum in 1997, conveys a lived-in feeling and is furnished with items that date to the late 1940s when Clinton lived there. A separate visitors center with a gift shop was added later.

The South Hervey Street home served as the center of Clinton's family life for his first 10 years.

After moving away, Clinton spent summers there, visited on weekends and attended other family gatherings there until his grandfather, Eldridge Cassidy, died in 1956.

The one original piece of furniture from Clinton's time in the house is the living room couch. While visitors are not permitted to touch or sit on the furniture, the home has no glass partitions or roped-off areas.

Museum director Martha Berryman says the people around Clinton in Hope provided him with his first notions of "social justice," a theme he carried through his political life.

The site will formally become part of the National Park Service in 2010, though it is already listed among other federal attractions.

Clinton said in his autobiography, "My Life," that the South Hervey Street home "certainly is the place I associate with awakening to life" and that it "still holds deep memories." CHUCK BARTELS (AP)

A Blast From the Pasta

Italian food pro Lidia Bastianich serves up Old-Country cooking

Cutting pasta and pouring vino is all in a day's work for Italian cooking pro Lidia Bastianich. The dolce vita-minded chef wins converts with her New York restaurants (Felidia and Becco) and a PBS show, "Lidia's Italy." The Croatian-born Italian-cuisine crusader just released a book, "Lidia Cooks From the Heart of Italy" ($35, Knopf). She'll be signing books at Bethesda's Barnes & Noble (4801 Bethesda Ave.; 301-986-1851) Saturday at 2 p.m. JENNIFER BARGER (EXPRESS)

Can Italian food be easy to cook?

Simplicity is at the heart of Italian cooking. It's really just about having great ingredients — buffalo mozzarella, prosciutto. And you don't have to use a lot of them: You don't need a quarter-pound of prosciutto on a sandwich.

What's the best place to buy those good Italian ingredients?

The Internet is tremendous — you can order so many things. But then with vegetables like zucchini or tomatoes, it's about using what you have locally and using the right technique.

CHOW, BELLA: Lidia Bastianich claims it's easy and cheap to whip up Italian food.

You're big on making your own pasta. Any advice for newbies?

It's very simple if you have a food processor. It's just about getting the ratio right between flour and a liquid, whether that's water or water and egg. You just need enough moisture to turn it into a dough. Some of it is just about having the confidence.

In the book, you also say that cooking Italian style can be easy on the wallet.

It's a perfect cuisine because there's a balance. It's not based on rich ingredients. There's no waste of anything like proteins; they use the whole pig.

Italian cuisine is also very seasonal. What should we fix now?

Go for recipes with mushroom or squash. Or you can also do soups or things with braised meats and vegetables. You can even braise meat and root vegetables in beer. It'll be moist and delicious. And in the book, I've also got a recipe for Spaghetti in Tomato-Apple Sauce. No, it doesn't taste sweet — the tomatoes take over.

Any tips for buying Italian wine to go with all that pasta and prosciutto?

There are a lot of good wines at great prices from Italy. Like Friuli has great whites — I even make my own there! And you can get good reds from southern regions, like Primitivo, which is like a Zinfandel. You have to do a little research, but after that, just trust your palate. Then your wine knowledge will just continue to develop and grow.

RECIPE FILE

Lentil Crostini

INGREDIENTS: 1 cup lentils; 2 stalks celery, chopped; 2 bay leaves; 6 tsp olive oil; 2 garlic cloves, peeled and sliced; 1 cup chopped onion; ¼ tsp peperoncino flakes; 2 cups canned tomatoes, crushed; 2 tsp salt; 12 slices bread

RINSE LENTILS, then put in a saucepan with celery, bay leaves and 3 cups cold water. Bring to a boil, cover pan and adjust heat to a simmer. Cook about 20 minutes. Meanwhile, pour 4 tbsp oil into the skillet; set over medium. Stir in garlic and onion; cook for five minutes. Drop peperoncino in pan and toast for a minute, then stir in tomatoes and 1 tsp salt; bring to simmer. Let it bubble until thicker. When lentils are slightly under-cooked, pour into their pan the tomato sauce from the skillet and stir. Return sauce to simmer. Cook, covered, about 10 minutes. Remove cover, stir in 1 tsp salt; let lentils cook slowly, stirring, until thick. Remove from heat; stir in 2 tbsp oil. Serve on bread slices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Comparing yourself to the competition may be a little premature. It might be wise to keep what you're doing under wraps a while longer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Someone you're trying to get in touch with at this time is making things more difficult for you — unintentionally, of course.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be judging yourself a bit harshly at this time. Everyone makes mistakes, and the one you've made is actually minor.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll want to extend courtesy to friend and foe alike at this time. Make no mistake — how you treat others comes back to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Since you're depending on others for so much, why not make an outright attempt to join forces and work together? All can benefit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're the one others are likely to turn to for advice, guidance, help or simply a kind word. Be ready to share yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Concentrate on how you feel — physically, mentally and emotionally. You may be in need of a little workout in one of these areas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone may make the mistake of bringing back a painful memory. You'll have to determine whether this was intentional or accidental.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have to decide how to react to the unexpected on the spot; don't expect to have any time to weigh your decisions carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) That which lies ahead is far more inviting than that which you've now left behind. It's a good day to count your blessings once more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in the mood to play a little game with someone who, unfortunately, may not be feeling the same. Control yourself; don't go too far.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be afforded a little taste of what's to come. As a result, you may want to alter your tactics just a bit — temporarily.

'People Might Think I'm Getting Fat If I Don't Tell'

"Real Housewives of New York City" star BETHENNY FRANKEL is pregnant, People.com reported.

Online rumors of her pregnancy spurred her to reveal it earlier than she would have liked. "I haven't even gone through my first trimester. We haven't even heard the heartbeat. My [fiance's] parents didn't even know," she said. Frankel became engaged to beau Jason Hoppy earlier this month. (EXPRESS)

It's not our fault that the Gosselins are an unavoidable facet of the news cycle.

Hey, Guy Who Complained About Gosselin Coverage: We Don't Like It Either

KATE GOSSELIN will tackle big topics on the final, one-hour episode of her show, airing Oct. 16. TLC promises to answer "your questions about life, the show and moving on," it said in a statement. The special will air the same day she and her soon-to-be-ex-husband, Jon Gosselin, are to appear in court seeking a financial settlement. (EXPRESS)
